You reached the end of this learning module. You are now able to describe the different IBM IoT APIs available on the platform and how you can use traditional programming languages to securely connect the devices, gateways and cloud applications of your IoT solution.